From the Desk of Your Pastoral Leaders

I just reading an article from Faith Inkubators that had a point worth repeating, but first a little background on the authors. Faith Inkubators is a think tank / curriculum publishing company that has been a pillar in the realm of intentional faith formation and discipleship training during the past 15 years. The founding pastor left parish ministry and mortgaged everything he owned in an effort to create a business that helps church bodies be intentional about faith formation experiences. Why would he do this? During his first years as a youth pastor he lost a kid who lost hope and took his own life. That pastor, Rich Melheim, was forever changed and intensely called and motivated to help the church participate in the faith formation of every child in intentional ways – ways that actually strengthened the support system of the child. Faith Inkubators are the people who bring us a version of Faith Stepping Stones – learning and rituals for gifting the child and blessing the family on the faith journey. They do good work. They also ask good questions about what we want to accomplish and how it is that our rich history as Lutherans plays into our future as disciples of the living Jesus.

The question is this: Where are we when it comes to Christian Education for children, youth and adults? The article I read summed it up this way: “We have 168 hours in a week and only one – maybe two of them are spent on intentional faith forming experiences.” Any experienced teacher might wonder if this is enough time to really get anything done. This is not about blame or shame. It’s a simple fact. This is the paradigm of Christian Education across the nation and the bottom line is that fewer families are finding that Sunday School, Confirmation and Adult Bible Study make the list of important activities at all. Kudos to all who make the effort.

Now, we could get upset and complain and create all kinds of programs and activities to meet everyone’s entertainment needs, or we can get creative with the challenge in the current context. “Creative” is what Faith Inkubators is all about. They “get” that families are busy. So, they have reached back into our Lutheran roots to help us to remember that the church is a wonderful place for that formal education experience to happen. We need to keep inviting others to the fun. In addition, they remind the church that the Small Catechism was invented so that parents could do their own Christian Education at home. What we are talking about here is not more homework or a to do list but rather modeling and habits. They offer the FAITH 5. These are five things that can be modeled in church every Sunday, in small groups and at home every night.

1. Share (highs and lows)
2. Read God’s Word – everyone
3. Talk
4. Pray
5. Bless

The three primary places for kids and adults to connect are these: car time, dinner time and bed time. So, at this point I offer them to you as a way to enrich your time together at the dinner table or right before bed. I myself have found that sharing highs and lows at the dinner table each evening gives everyone an opportunity to say what is on their hearts and minds. The grandparents, aunts, uncles and cousins seem to expect it too. They don't have to wait until Thanksgiving to say for what it is that they are thankful. From a ministry standpoint, this experience creates an image of both confession and thanksgiving around a meal. How could Jesus not be knowingly present? From a mother's perspective, sometimes it is just good to have a positive focus when the inmates are close to taking over the asylum. A quick "What's your high and low today?" ushers us into a ritual of listening and learning about each other. Some days are better than others, but the habit is there. We don't have to wait until worship on Sunday morning to have a sense of spirituality. Our day to day activities often provide us with the time and space to pay attention to what God is already working on.

This is not to say that Sunday mornings aren't important for Faith Formation. I think they are extremely important. They are the springboard for the journey. For two hours each week, we spend time remembering who we are and whose we are – claimed by a promise that never abandons and never fails. The Faith 5 help us to allow those God Stories to become our stories when faced with the same challenges. Daniel helps us to be brave. Esther helps all girls to use wisdom, confidence and grace in situations of power. Jesus helps us to love those who are different from us, and Jesus helps us to be with those who suffer.

My prayer for you is that the living Word may dwell with you each and every day.
Blessings and Hope,

Sonja

Reformation Sunday

Sunday, October 26th – Wear red – the liturgical color of the day.

Reformation Day – October 31

Excerpt from Sundays and Seasons, p. 290

By the end of the seventeenth century, many Lutheran churches celebrated a festival commemorating Martin Luther's posting of the Ninety-five Theses, a summary of the abuses in the church of his time. At the heart of the reform movement was the gospel, the good news that it is by grace through faith that we are justified and set free.

With the 1999 signing of the Joint Declaration on the Doctrine of Justification on this date, the question of how the Reformation might be celebrated appropriately is a lively question, if Lutheran and Roman Catholics agree on the basic nature of the gospel, now what? This commemoration is less a victory day for Lutherans than it is an opportunity to be reminded of the reformers' belief that the church would always stand in need of reformation.

Life Together is published monthly by the Olsburg-Walsburg Lutheran Parish. Deadline for calendar and other items is the last Monday of each month.

A Parable about a Lifesaving Station

On a dangerous seacoast where shipwrecks often occur there was once a crude little lifesaving station. The building was just a hut, and there was only one boat, but the few devoted members kept a constant watch over the sea, and with no thought of themselves went out day and night tirelessly searching for the lost. Many lives were saved by this wonderful little station, so that it became famous. Some of those who were saved, and various others in the surrounding area, wanted to become associated with the station and give of their time and money and effort for the support of its work. New boats were bought and new crews trained. The little lifesaving station grew.

Some of the members of the lifesaving station were unhappy that the building was so crude and poorly equipped. They felt that a more comfortable place should be provided as the first refuge of those saved from the sea. So they replaced the emergency cots with beds and put better furniture in the enlarged building. Now the lifesaving station became a popular gathering place for its members, and they decorated it beautifully and furnished it exquisitely, because they used it as a sort of club. Fewer members were now interested in going to sea on lifesaving missions, so they hired lifeboat crews to do this work. The lifesaving motif still prevailed in this club's decoration, and there was a liturgical lifeboat in the room where the club initiations were held. About this time a large ship was wrecked off the coast, and the hired crews brought in boatloads of cold, wet, and half-drowned people. They were dirty and sick, and some of them had black skin and some had yellow skin. The beautiful new club was in chaos. So the property committee immediately had a shower house built outside the club where victims of shipwreck could be cleaned up before coming inside.

At the next meeting, there was a split in the club membership. Most of the members wanted to stop the club's lifesaving activities as being unpleasant and a hindrance to the normal social life of the club. Some members insisted upon lifesaving as their primary purpose and pointed out that they were still called a lifesaving station. But they were finally voted down and told that if they wanted to save the lives of all the various kinds of people who were shipwrecked in those waters, they could begin their own lifesaving station down the coast. They did.

As the years went by, the new station experienced the same changes that had occurred in the old. It evolved into a club, and yet another lifesaving station was founded. History continued to repeat itself, and if you visit that sea coast today, you will find a number of exclusive clubs along that shore. Shipwrecks are frequent in those water, but most of the people drown!

This parable originally appeared in an article by Theodore O. Wedel, "Evangelism—the Mission of the Church to Those Outside Her Life," The Ecumenical Review, October 1953, p. 24.

Did you notice the date for when this was written? Fifty-five years ago... A lot has changed in these Olsburg and Walsburg communities since then, and I look forward to hearing more of your stories and discovering the hope which you live. ONE THING HASN'T CHANGED – the mission of the church is to those outside her life, and that can be a scary and uncharted future. God is leading us!

Blessings and Hope
Pastor Gordy

Coming in November: Grace Ways Community Bible Study

All are invited to gather as a community to connect, study and pray. Our format will include both large and small group elements as we engage in bible study through the Lutheran Lens - the lens of God's grace. Prior to diving into God's Word as a community, we will be studying the framework through which we read the Word. We will spend 7 weeks with "Opening the Book of Faith: Lutheran Insights for Bible Study."

This seven-session course introduces practical methods and approaches to studying Scripture, and then reinforces the basics of scriptural interpretation with four integrated studies that build biblical fluency. Important communication tools, study principles, and discussion methods are unpacked for participants in a flexible, conversational format that encourages discussion, conversation, and sharing & setting a healthy foundation for a powerful Book of Faith experience.

Following this introduction, we will forge ahead by tackling specific books of the bible to get the full flavor or what each author is sharing and how God's Story is also our story. Cost of Books: $13 (If you are unable to meet this challenge, please contact your pastors for other arrangements. We don't want money to stand in the way of your participation.) Schedule: Monday evenings, 7:00 - 8:30 pm at Walsburg Lutheran or Tuesdays mornings, 9:00 - 10:30 am at Olsburg Lutheran. We will meet during the first three weeks of every month beginning on November 3rd / 4th. Please invite your neighbors and friends. All are welcome.

Faith Milestone: Blessing of the Car Keys

Sunday, October 19th during worship

Driving for the first time is a rite of passage of huge proportions.

It is both a time of significant freedom and significant responsibility. For parents it can be a time of significant worry and wondering. For some youth, 16 is the magic number. For others, the farm use license comes at a much earlier age. Regardless, the church desires to both recognize this significant time with both a prayer for your safety and a blessing for your families as you embrace this new freedom and responsibility. All who are driving, have been driving or will be driving within the next year are encouraged to allow the congregation to pray for your family.

Central States Synod Update New Purpose Statement and Missional Directions

After much time and discernment, our synodical leaders have offered the following to help the ministry for the 204 congregations in the Central States Synod.

God is calling us to be a people...

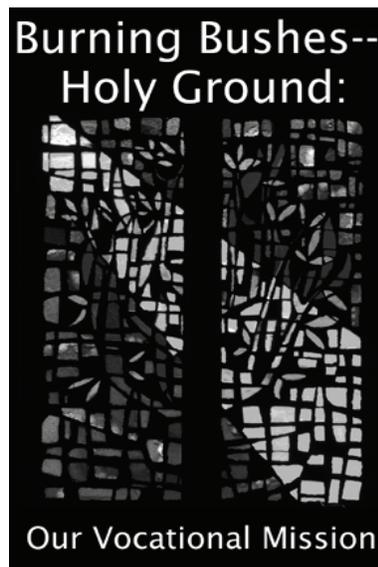

Changed by love
Sent in love,
To serve.

To offer more specificity and give focus to the area ministries, the following missional directions have been offered:

God is calling us to be a people engaged in...

- Igniting spiritual renewal
- Raising up leaders of all ages for the church
- Building bridges across the differences that divide our society
- Inspiring and equipping people to be a part of what god is up to in their everyday lives.

This is good stuff. As we gather in our groups and classes, we can begin to simply offer these as one of the lenses through which we see ourselves in ministry together. If you want more information on what kinds of ministries the Central States are engaged with, check out www.CSS-ELCA.org
